Which aspects of teaching did you like the most?

Comments
Ability to communicate ideas in different wording or with different approach.
Stephanie's teaching is very thorough, coherent, and she's extremely patient with us!
Stephanie has gone over and beyond the role of an instructor. She served as the glue that held the class together, trying to integrate the important aspects of each lecture so that we can make better sense of the bigger picture.
Stephanie did a great job of tying the lectures together and explaining difficult concepts patiently and clearly! I got a lot out of the discussion sections and always felt comfortable attending her office hours and engaging in the material when I had questions or concerns. I cannot even imagine how challenging it must have been to coordinate a class like this, so kudos to her for doing it admirably!
I appreciated that Stephanie was able to explain and walk us through concepts that weren't always clear the first time around in lecture. She also encouraged discussion during section, inviting people to participate without pressuring too much.
Well-organized and concise. Students are encouraged to participate and ask questions in class.
stephanie was given an impossible task of making almost 20 different lectures feel coherent and cohesive, and although for the first few weeks i was pretty frustrated, once she found a groove it was so great to have her string the concepts together into the homework, assignments, and readings. she made herself readily accessible throughout the semester and i really appreciated her
I can imagine that assisting a class with 10 different teachers can be challenging. But Stephanie handled the class so well and really helped me understand each week's topic.
The assignments and load were enough to cover all concepts of the course.
The GSI made the content of the course much more accessible and was very kind and supportive throughout all of the assignments.
I really enjoyed Stephanie as a GSI this semester. Her discussion sessions were thoughtfully organized, covered the relevant content, and engaged students using breakout rooms and discussion questions. Stephanie was flexible in her office hours and was willing to meet outside of her normally scheduled hours to help when needed. Overall, she made the class so much more accessible and enjoyable for me. Thank you!
The GSI well explained the difficult concepts of the main course materials to make sure that students understood them with ease.
I appreciated Stephanie's use of breakout rooms and her willingness to always meet with me outside of her scheduled office hours.
Stephanie was always available and willing to help.
I think Stephanie was always available, in a positive mood, really benevolent. She made me feel like "there is no bad questions to ask". Plus, she gave us a lot of info (++ transparency) and always asked for our feedbacks. Thank you Stephanie :)
The lectures are well-organized. And we covers so many topics in this semester!

Which aspects of teaching did you dislike the most?

Comments
N/A
None!
Overall, I would have liked a bit more opportunity for discussion during the discussion sections, but that is difficult because I did find her review very helpful.
It's perfect.
It would be better if the instruction of assignment was clear. And the assignments were somewhat overwhelmed compared to other class's assignments.
n.a
The first assignment regarding stata and R was the most challenging for me and felt that there was not good communication between MDP staff, 253 faculty, and Stephanie. I don't think this was Stephanie's fault, I think she could have been supported more by the faculty in this regard.
If possible, smaller breakout rooms would have worked.
The class topics felt very disconnected week to week – was not Stephanie's fault though, she did a great job as the only continuous link holding all professors/subjects together.
Not being able to interact and learn more from Stephanie and her experience.

Nothing

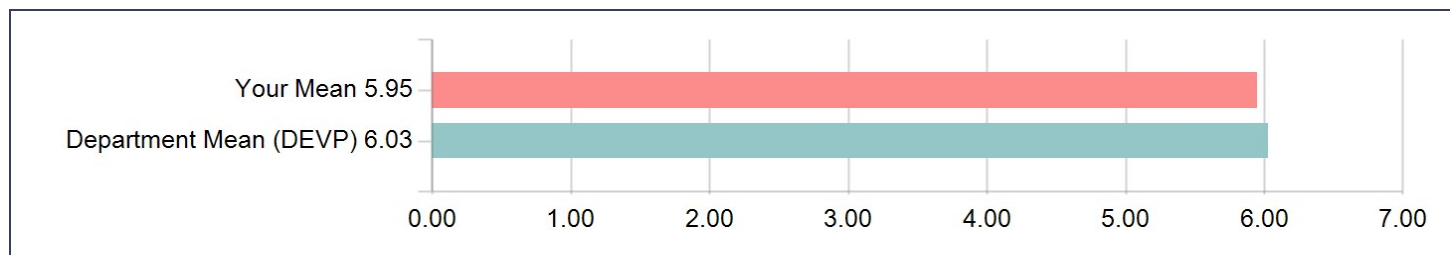

How might the teaching have been improved?

Comments
I think it's already the best we could have experienced!
None!
I thought she did a great job!
Maybe a bit more energy/enthusiasm for course material would be nice...but I understand it's early.
It's perfect.
n.a
Honestly, given the unusual structure of the course, I don't think Stephanie could have done anything better. She hit all the marks for me.
Small quizzes might improve the students' understanding.
Continuity between professors/topics and incorporation of materials into one another.
In person or hybrid instruction.

Which aspects of the course did you like the most?

Comments
Expert content and strong statistic/ research backup.
The variety of topics and activities such as policy briefs and assignments helped us think about the various policy approaches to macroeconomic and microeconomic issues and their real-life applications. Discussion topics also promoted critical thinking.
I really liked Stephanie's slides and overviews of concepts that we discussed in lecture. She did a good job of breaking down important concepts even for students who weren't familiar with statistics and quantitative methods and she was very patient.
I actually appreciated the reading assignments in retrospect as they did keep me engaged with the reading and helped me avoid the temptation to skim or skip, though I would appreciate a more predictable reading length from week to week so that I am not surprised and have to spend my entire Sunday reading.
Well-organized and concise.
the speakers were so interesting!
The readings were excellent. Janvry Sadoulet book is just amazing.
As this was my first course in this subject matter, I loved diving into the topic and developing a critical lens on the subject.
I liked the broad reach of the topics and the opportunity to meet a range of professors.
n.a. will be described in the other evaluation for the lecture.
Conversations with classmates and hearing how their experiences related to the development topic of the week.
Stephanie was always very organized and clear.
I think it was good to review some of the materials and to make breakout rooms also to work with others (even remotely).
The course include rich topics this semester.

Which aspects of the course did you dislike the most?

Comments
Maybe a little too much content sometimes and we didn't have enough time to thoroughly debate one or two valuable ideas in each class.
Just the Stata assignment that we needed to learn in a few days.
Sometimes I felt like we spent too much time on the quantitative aspects and less time discussing some of the more theoretical or practical issues.
It's perfect.
having as many lecturers (online) as we did makes the course on the whole feel incredibly disjointed, and although the presentations were really interesting, they never related to the previous one and rarely connected to other ones in a substantial way, and so it was entirely on the discussion section to bring it together, which took away from the discussion section to be more about discussing. having lecture and discussion so early in the morning was brutal and really a terrible idea. at least one absolutely needed to be at a better time for CA. It was also incredibly difficult to sift through information for one lecturer or another, and I found myself giving up on contacting several because of how overwhelming it was.
n.a
I am confused as to what skills I should be walking away from the course. Qualitative, quantitative, a critical perspective on the subject? The course assignments from this year seemed to be all over the place in this regard. Additionally, looking at the course assignments from last year, made me wonder if I did not gain enough of a theory background OR a quantitative background.
The lectures felt very disjointed, the topics sometimes overlapped, but often it was hard to make connections between the content from week to week.
n.a. will be described in the other evaluation for the lecture.
There was a coding homework assigned at the beginning of the course without any explanation on how to code, which was a little daunting.
Repetition of concepts seen in class during section.
Sometimes a bit too much questions from the students so I felt like we did not move as much as we were supposed to.

In what way could the course be improved?

Comments
Maybe students could vote on which topic they would like to take more time discussing, and which are fine that we just read the critical studies.
The Stata assignment was the only one that was unclear...though challenging!
It's perfect.
never have lecture and discussion both be at such terrible hours. it's incredibly difficult to engage meaningfully that way.
There was an issue with the first homework (using State vs R), which was frustrating. I think if either program is going to be used in future classes, there should be more time taken to level set the class.
n.a
As the course was new this year, there were times when it would have been helpful for Stephanie to give us a larger overview of the course information and how the classes connected together. Additionally, it was unclear to me what the goals of the course were! Was it to have a conversation, to increase our quantitative skills? This is feedback for both the course and the GSI!
Don't have so many professors. Stick to 3 max.
n.a. will be described in the other evaluation for the lecture.
Schedule/incorporate a R/Stata course at the beginning of the semester for students without prior coding experience.
Encourage conversation between professors so that their material can build off one another.
Making section less repetitive and more thought provoking.
As we discussed during the seminar, it would be better if the relationships between courses could be stronger. And for me personally, I wish I could have more statistic training or research skills training before the class, as I found it difficult to understand the quantitative part of the researches sometimes.

Which aspects of teaching did you like the most?

- ◊ Stephanie did a great job of tying the lectures together and explaining difficult concepts patiently and clearly! I got a lot out of the discussion sections and always felt comfortable attending her office hours and engaging in the material when I had questions or concerns. I cannot even imagine how challenging it must have been to coordinate a class like this, so kudos to her for doing it admirably!

Which aspects of teaching did you dislike the most?

- ◊ Overall, I would have liked a bit more opportunity for discussion during the discussion sections, but that is difficult because I did find her review very helpful.

How might the teaching have been improved?

Which aspects of the course did you like the most?

Which aspects of the course did you dislike the most?

- ◊ Sometimes I felt like we spent too much time on the quantitative aspects and less time discussing some of the more theoretical or practical issues.

Which aspects of the course did you like the most?

- ◊ As this was my first course in this subject matter, I loved diving into the topic and developing a critical lens on the subject.

Which aspects of the course did you dislike the most?

- ◊ I am confused as to what skills I should be walking away from the course. Qualitative, quantitative, a critical perspective on the subject? The course assignments from this year seemed to be all over the place in this regard. Additionally, looking at the course assignments from last year, made me wonder if I did not gain enough of a theory background OR a quantitative background.

In what way could the course be improved?

- ◊ As the course was new this year, there were times when it would have been helpful for Stephanie to give us a larger overview of the course information and how the classes connected together. Additionally, it was unclear to me what the goals of the course were! Was it to have a conversation, to increase our quantitative skills? This is feedback for both the course and the GSI!

Which aspects of teaching did you like the most?

- ◊ I really enjoyed Stephanie as a GSI this semester. Her discussion sessions were thoughtfully organized, covered the relevant content, and engaged students using breakout rooms and discussion questions. Stephanie was flexible in her office hours and was willing to meet outside of her normally scheduled hours to help when needed. Overall, she made the class so much more accessible and enjoyable for me. Thank you!

Which aspects of teaching did you dislike the most?

- ◊ The first assignment regarding stata and R was the most challenging for me and felt that there was not good communication between MDP staff, 253 faculty, and Stephanie. I don't think this was Stephanie's fault, I think she could have been supported more by the faculty in this regard.

How might the teaching have been improved?

- ◊ Honestly, given the unusual structure of the course, I don't think Stephanie could have done anything better. She hit all the marks for me.

◊ The course include rich topics this semester.

In what way could the course be improved?

◊ As we discussed during the seminar, it would be better if the relationships between courses could be stronger. And for me personally, I wish I could have more statistic training or research skills training before the class, as I found it difficult to understand the quantitative part of the researches sometimes.

Which aspects of teaching did you like the most?

- ◊ I can imagine that assisting a class with 10 different teachers can be challenging. But Stephanie handled the class so well and really helped me understand each week's topic.

How might the teaching have been improved?

- ◊ I think more opportunities for breakout rooms would be nice! Also, the amount of material to cover each week was so vast, if there's a way to trim it down so each week doesn't feel so rushed.

In what way could the course be improved?

- ◊ There was an issue with the first homework (using State vs R), which was frustrating. I think if either program is going to be used in future classes, there should be more time taken to level set the class.
